Nate suffered a devastating blow when he lost his job. His boss had spoken rudely, "Your services are no longer needed." Nate left the building filled with despair. By the time he reached home, he was in a deep depression. When he entered his house, he blurted out to his wife Sophia, "I lost my job. I am a complete, utter failure." A tense silence followed. Then a smile crept across Sophia's face. "What great news!" she responded. "Now you can write the book you have always wanted to write."

"But I have no job and no prospect (hope) of a job," he objected, completely without hope. "If I struggle to be an author, then what will we live on? Where will the money come from?"

Sophia took her husband by the hand and led him to the kitchen, opening a drawer, she took out a box that was full of cash. "Where on earth did you get this?" Nate gasped. "To whom does it belong?"

"It's ours!" Sophia replied. "I always knew that one day you would become a great writer if only you were given the chance. From the money you gave me for housekeeping every week, I have saved as much as I could so you would have your chance. Now there is enough to last us a whole year."

What a surprise! What encouragement! What a wife! The unemployed husband did concentrate on writing that year, and the novel he wrote became a literary masterpiece. The book is The Scarlet Letter. Sophia had an even greater achievement, and she turned Nathaniel Hawthorne from a poor clerk into a world famous master.

Passage B

Sheep Smarter than Thought

London---- Sheep, like turkeys and ostriches, are not considered the most clever animals. British scientists said last Wednesday humans may have underestimated the woolly creature. They could be much smarter than we think.

Researchers at the Babraham Institute in Cambridge, southern England, have shown that the animals have a good memory system and are extremely good at recognizing faces----which they think is a sure sign of intelligence.

Behavioural scientist Keith Kendrick and his friends trained 20 sheep to recognize and distinguish (区别) 25 pairs of sheep faces and used electrodes (电极) to measure their brain activity, which showed they could remember 50 faces for up to two years.

“If they can do that with faces, the fact is that they have to have reasonable intelligence; otherwise, which is the point of having a system for remembering faces and not remembering anything else?” Kendrick said in an interview.

So hours of seemingly mindless eating grass may not be so mindless after all.

Kendrick believes sheep got their reputation(名声) as dumb (unable to speak, unintelligence) animals because they live in large groups and do not appear to have much individuality(个性) and are frightened of just about everything.

“All animals, including humans, once they are frightened, don’t tend to show signs of intelligent action,” he explained.

In research reported in the science journal Nature, Kendrick and his team showed that sheep, like human, have a specialized system in the brain which allows them to distinguish (区分) between many different faces which look extremely similar.

“The most important finding (of the study) is that they are able, both from a behavioural point of view and from looking at the way the brain is organized, to remember a large number of individuals for a very long time,” said Kendrick. “It is a very strange system. They are showing similar abilities in many ways to human.”

5. From the first paragraph we can find that ____.

 - C. people don't consider sheep as clever animals
 - D. people have done a lot of research on sheep

- A. scientists have learned a lot about sheep's intelligence
 - B. scientists have learned little about sheep's intelligence
 - C. scientist can't do anything more about sheep's memory
 - D. scientists do not have to research animals' memory
7. As is known in the passage, ____.
- A. sheep are among the weak animals
 - B. it is not right for people to raise sheep in groups
 - C. when sheep eat grass in the field their minds may be active
 - D. if people feel frightened, they may become more brave
8. When scientists found that sheep show similar abilities in many ways to humans they think it ____.
- A. interesting B. worrying C. moving D. frightening

Joe wanted a bicycle. He had asked his parents for the money and they had said he must make the money himself. But how? Joe thought about this as he walked home. Not many people wanted to ask children to work for them. Maybe he could clear away snow for the neighbors. But this was summer. He'd have to wait a long time for that. He couldn't cut grass for their gardens because he had no tool to do the work with.

Then Joe saw one of his classmates, Dick, delivering newspapers. "I could do that," he thought. "Maybe I could even get a bicycle immediately. I could pay for it a little each week." He ran to catch up with Dick. Joe asked a lot of questions about getting a job as a newspaper boy. He learned that it was possible to earn twenty-five dollars each week. He learned that the job took about three hours each night. Dick gave him the telephone number of the newspaper manager.

Joe ran back home as fast as he could. After he had told his mother about his plan, she smiled. "I think it's a great idea," she said. "I'll call the newspaper ..."

（阅读短文，在文后的空格中填适当的单词或短语，每空不得超过 3 个单词。）

Celebrating New Year's Day is one of the oldest and most exciting customs around the world. Since this festival marks the beginning of the year, New Year's Day is thought of as a perfect time for a "clean start" or New Year's determination. People worldwide determine to act better in the year just beginning than in the year just ended.

No day has ever been observed on so many different dates or in so many different ways. All over the world, countries have their own special beliefs about what the New Year means to them.

In Scotland, the New Year is called Hogmanay. In the villages of Scotland, barrels of tar(木焦油/沥青) are set on fire and then roll down the streets. This special way symbolizes that the old year is burned up and the new one is allowed to enter.

New Year's Day is also the Festival of Saint Basil in Greece. Children leave their shoes by the fireside on New Year's Day with the hope that Saint Basil, Who is famous for his kindness, will come and fill their shoes with gifts.

The Jewish New Year is called Rosh Hashanah. It is a holy time when Jews recall the things they have done wrong in the past, and then promise to do better in the future. Special services are held in the Jewish church, children are given new clothes and New Year loaves are baked to remind people of harvest time.

On New Year's Day in Japan, everyone gets dressed in new clothes and homes are decorated with pine branches and bamboo—symbols of long life.

In European countries such as Italy, Portugal and the Netherlands, families start the New Year by first attending church services. Afterwards, they visit friends and relatives. In Italy, boys and girls receive gifts of money on New Year's Day.
